SHOCK FROM MME. STRINDBERG

Talks Plainly to Suffragists.

Tilke Plainly to Suffragists.

Mime. August Strindberg, widow of the Swedish philosopher, denied yester-day that he had been a woman hater, "How could he be when he married three times?" she asked at a meeting of the Equal Franchise League.

"He believed," Mime. Strindberg went on, "that the vote was only a means toward an end and that even when we got it the woman question would still be unanswered. The reason the women of England and America are so strong for suffrage is because they cannot hold their men without it. Votes for women mean next to nothing.

"The women of Germany are certainly happier and better off than the suffrageties of England. Germany has to-day some of the most intellectual women in the world, but because they are quiet and attend to their own business the world shows little about them.

CONCERT PLAYERS OF VARIED KINDS

of the several concerts of yesterday hat which was most interesting to th student was the organ recital of Pietro You in Acolian Hall in the evening. Mi You had the assistance of his own Gre sang some of the admirable music of the last Pope. Two of the numbers heard arrangements made by Mr. You.

The two Gregorian chants were of the fully developed neumatic or florid type and called for no small degree of sidil in their execution. There was perhaps some exaggeration of the portamento in the singing of these two chants, by which an approach to the sternly forbidden theatrical style was made; but the treatment of accent and the phrasing in extended passages requiring the taking of breath before the completion of a word were in accord with the rules laid down by the Solemes Fathers.

It would be pleasant to commend equally the organ playing of Mr. You. It cannot be done, however, for while the player showed much facility in his the player shower much many and treatment of the manuals and the pedals his registration was distinguished by remarkably bad taste. His combinations of stops were in some instances almost fatal, and his fondness for the vox humana introduced into his performance a regrettable element of effeminacy. This was especially lamentable in the slow movement of Bach's first organ sonata. Certainly the mighty organist of Coether and Anhalt and Leipsic was never a sick man of the instrument, and while he did not avoid the use of the tremulant he ld have been offended at this inter pretation of his solemn thought

Miss Thomas's Playing Pleases.

In the afternoon Nicola Thomas, a young English violinist, gave a recital in the Little Theatre, while Roderick White, an American player of the same line, was heard in the Princess Theatre, Miss Thomas's programme included numbers by Bach, Mozart, Saint-Saens, Waher, Tartini Argustiand Wilstein. Weber, Tartini, Arenski and Wieniawski. The opening number was a sonata for plano and violin, by Ernst von Dohnanyi, in which the recital giver had the assistance of Herbert Fryer. Miss s an unfamiliar work in three move ments, allegro appassionato, allegro ma contenerezza and vivace assai. It is of pleasing melody and color, and it was presented by the players with appre-
